

BROWN ALUMNI MONTHLY

 1930 - 1931 ***

A College education for your child, figured on to-day's basis, will cost $6000 -- an average of $1500 a year.

How are you planning to meet this expense, out of your current income at that time or by easy stages spread over the previous years from your boy's childhood until he is 18?

Bankers, investment, professional and leading business men have selected the Puritan Child's Educational Fund Contract as the best means of creating the fund for their children's education. It is a superlative plan.

Life Insurance Goes Further in Trust

A young man was talking with our Life Insurance Trust specialist, and was hesitant about considering the trust plan until he was able to take out more insurance . . . thought he was carrying scarcely enough to "bother with."

But he saw the matter in a different light when he realized that his insurance represented the greater part of his estate, and in the event of his untimely death, his widow would have to make it go just as far as possible. A Life Insurance Trust was almost imperative for her protection.

Foresighted men and women are establishing trusts with such insurance as they now carry, and adding new policies from time to time as their means permit.

May we explain how you can use this plan to advantage?

Most of America's Night Airports are G-E Lighted

BESIDES developing a complete system of airport illumination—flood-lights, boundary lights, and beacons—to facilitate and safeguard night air-travel, General Electric has given to the aeronautic industry:

The G-E magneto compass, which has been found by some of America's best-known pilots to be the most accurate and reliable compass they have ever used.

The G-E supercharger, with which 70 per cent of the American engines built in 1929 were equipped, and which has made possible all American altitude records to date.

Also the G-E engine-temperature indicator, engine-speed indicator, oil immersion heater, card compass, arc-welding equipment, radio equipment, and other pioneer developments.

The G-E monogram, on products used in the air, on land, and at sea, is everywhere the mark of quality and reliability.

FOR THE HOME: Millions of American homes are made happier and more comfortable by electric appliances bearing the G-E monogram. These include refrigerators, radio sets, fans, vacuum cleaners; motors for many other electrically driven household devices; Mazda lamps, wiring systems, and Sunlamps; Hotpoint electric ranges and appliances.

FOR INDUSTRY: G-E research and engineering have made important contributions to every basic industry, including apparatus for generating, transmitting, and applying electricity; electric furnaces and heating devices; street, traffic, airport, and Cooper Hewitt lights; Victor X-ray apparatus; equipment for railroad and marine electrification, and for street railways

The University Survey Goes Forward

THE three survey experts from other institutions of higher learning, who for some months past have been engaged in studying the existing condition and needs of Brown University, supplemented their two weeks in residence in Providence last spring with a good deal of individual work elsewhere during the summer, and followed this with some ten days of collaboration at Hanover, New Hampshire. Their final report is to be made to the University Corporation at the fall meeting of that body in Providence on October 9.

It should be understood that long before these outside experts began their comprehensive task Brown itself had been engaged in a self-survey, covering some five years. The result of this was that when the survey committee organized, the university was able to supply it with a great mass of pertinent information, without which it is fair to believe its members would have been loth to take up their task. It should be added that 300 separate and original documents descriptive of conditions at Brown, and outlining the university's plans and needs, were turned over to the surveyors, thus greatly lightening the burden put upon them.

In advance of their coming, various fundamental principles had been laid down by the university authorities. It had been decided as a definite program that (1) the number of students should be limited, and more adequate provisions made for their selection; that (2) the faculty should be strengthened; that (3) the Graduate School should have a larger part than the Graduate Department had previously had in the university scheme, and that (4) there should be larger facilities for study not only by faculty members and graduate students but by advanced undergraduates. Considerable progress had already been made along these several lines before the 1930 survey was undertaken. The last-named feature of this program is of special interest. It aims at encouraging, so far as possible, Seniors and Juniors who show a special aptitude and desire for advanced work of high quality.

Faculty Committee Helps It Along

THE continuation of Brown's five-year process of self-examination and the solution of the problems which are thereby disclosed was assured by action of the faculty at its June meeting when it authorized the appointment of a large committee of the faculty to undertake further studies. This committee, appointed by the President, is representative of all points of view and of all interests in the university. It consists of the following members:

Dr. A. D. Mead, chairman; Professor J. P. Adams, Secretary; Professor S. Brown, Dean S. T. Arnold, Professor L. Carmichael, Professor B. C. Clough, Professor C. H. Currier, Professor L. T. Damon, Professor H. T. Fowler, Professor R. H. George, Professor W. T. Hastings, Professor J. E. Hill, Professor H. B. Huntington, Professor C. A. Kraus, Dean K. O. Mason, Professor A. H. MacPhail, Professor M. C. Mitchell, Dean M. S. Morriss, Professor H. E. Miller, Dean R. G. D. Richardson, Professor H. E. Smith, Professor J. W. Wilson, Professor S. J. Ducasse.

Through this committee certain studies were inaugurated during the summer. Two meetings of the committee were held during the summer vacation and it is noteworthy that all members, except three or four, who were in Europe, were present at these meetings. Sub-committees were appointed to study the curriculum, to study the student body and the factors which influence its quality, and to study the organization of the administrative activities of the University. The committee will meet frequently during the current academic year and its recommendations will be brought, from time to time, to the faculty and to the corporation.

The Advisory and Executive Committee, at a special session called to consider the status and progress of the survey, appointed Professor J. P. Adams as coadjutor with the vice president in the administration of his office and arranged for the partial release of Professor Adams from the teaching in his department.

Work During the Summer

It is interesting to know that during the summer just past four divisions of the university—the departments of Biology, Chemistry, Mathematics and Physics—have remained open, with a good part of the teaching staff in attendance, and with teachers and graduate students continuously engaged. This is in strong contrast to the old-fashioned idea of a long annual vacation for instructors as well as students.

Faunce House

THE academic year at Brown has opened with plans well matured for the new centre of undergraduate life and activity—Faunce House, as it is to be called in honor of the late president of the university and in accordance with the request of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., of the class of 1897, who, as was announced at Commencement, has given $600,000 for the remodelling of the present Brown Union and the addition to it of a large brick structure which will become an integral part of the older building by means of an arch connecting the two. The new section will utilize the sites of the two wooden buildings east of the present Brown Union (Rockefeller Hall). The first of these is the old Governor Taft mansion, lately occupied by William A. Viall, '84; and the other is—or rather was—the home of the Department of Education. The latter building has recently been moved to a site nearer the Lyman Gymnasium.

The plans for Faunce House show a capacious theatre, a long-felt need at Brown, and, along with this, rehearsal rooms for Sock and Buskin, the university dramatic society. There will also be a cafeteria, a grill room and private dining rooms, offices for alumni activities and for the Keeper of the Graduate Records, and headquarters for various other interests, such as undergraduate publications and the debating union. The entire structure, new and old, is to be ready for occupancy a year hence—that is at the opening of college in 1931.

With this fine new academic centre, the undergraduate life of Brown should be better equipped than ever before. Every friend of the college is grateful to Mr. Rockefeller for the generous benefaction that has made the improvement possible.

Faculty Changes at Brown

Arlan R. Coolidge, '24, has been appointed acting assistant professor of music at Brown for the present academic year. He takes the place of Professor Gene Ware, who is on a year's leave of absence. For the past year Professor Coolidge has been a student at the Vienna Academy of Music. George M. Tinker, '29, a prominent member of the musical clubs as an undergraduate, will be his assistant. Professor Coolidge was a member of the first Brown University Orchestra and was later leader and violin soloist of the orchestra. After graduation he continued his studies of music and for two years was the holder of a scholarship of the Juilliard Foundation in New York. He played as a member of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra and the New York Philharmonic Orchestra and also taught at the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

Other appointees announced are: Mahlon K. Schnacke as assistant librarian of the University and John C. Reed of the English Department at bibliographer. Mr. Schnacke received his A. B. degree at the University of Minnesota and his Bachelor of Library Science at the New York State Library School. He comes to Brown from the New York Public Library, where he served as cataloguer, and he will be in charge of the John Hay Library until the return of Dr. Henry B. Van Hoesen, librarian, who is at present in Europe. Mr. Reed, a graduate of Brown in 1923, studied at Oxford University, England, before returning to College Hill two years ago.

Other major appointments include Rev. Dudley Tyng of Barrington as acting assistant professor of biblical literature in place of Dr. Millar Burrows, who is having his sabbatic year; James H. Shoemaker and Nathanael H. Engle of the University of Michigan as assistant professors of economics; Herbert N. Couch from the University of Illinois, assistant professor of the Greek and Latin classics; Dr. James B. Hedges of Clark University, lecturer in history; Cletus O. Oakley and Charles H. Smiley, assistant professors of mathematics; Dr. Ralph M. Blake from the University of Washington, professor of philosophy; Dr. Robert B. Lindsay, Brown, 1920, from Yale University, associate professor of physics; Dr. Arthur H. Ruggles of Butler Hospital, lecturer in psychology; and Rev. Dr. Arthur L. Washburn, lecturer in Italian.

Dean Otis E. Randall, Prof. Walter C. Everett and Dr. Harry Lyman Koopman, retired last June, become professors emeriti. In addition to Dr. Burrows and Prof. Ware, the members of the faculty who will be away for the year are Profs. Carl W. Miller, Hugh B. Killough, John F. Greene, M. C. Wier and C. A. Lynch.

There are four new instructors in the English department, namely, Joseph D. Fisler, William E. Wilson, Ralph L. Blanchard and Harrison J. Platt. Other new instructors are George D. Snell, biology; Richard N. Meinert, chemistry; W. Harrison Carter, Jr., economics; Abbott Fraser and Theodore Theodorides, Greek and Latin classics; Walter Kien, German; Sinclair W. Armstrong, Bruce N. Bigelow and Jarvis M. Morse, history; Robert H. Williams, romance languages; and Campbell B. Beard, social and political sciences. David Moskowitz, Paul Eberhart and Herman Karnow will act as part-time instructors in mathematics.

Among those promoted to full professorships are Arthur M. Banta, biology; Harry E. Miller, who will be Eastman professor of political economy; Benjamin C. Clough, Greek and Latin classics; and Dean Samuel T. Arnold. The new associate professors are Charles A. Stuart, biology; A. Ford Hinrichs, economics; S. Foster Damon and George K. Anderson, English; and J. Barrett Botsford, history. New assistant professors include Ivon R. Taylor and Magel C. Wilder, biology; Charles B. Wooster and Laurence S. Foster, chemistry; Leicester Bradner, English; Harold Schlosberg, psychology; and C. A. Baylis, philosophy.

Sock and Buskin Alumni Organize

By Theodore L. Sweet

A new organization has recently been formed on the hill by the alumni interested in dramatics in the city and in the college.

There are two important reasons why such an organization as the "Sock and Buskin Alumni" should exist. These stand out among the many others which form the idealistic objectives toward which the activity of the organization should lead.

The first is that of coordinating the efforts of those persons in the community who are actively interested in a progressive dramatic policy—those persons are studying dramatics in general either for a livelihood or as a pastime—with the demand of a larger group who desire to see produced plays of literary, histrionic, and historic merit. With the exception of a group of ever changing undergraduates, there has not been in the past decade any serious and persistent attempt to revive and preserve the outstanding pieces of dramatic literature of the past, to experiment with the ideas of the present day, or to show along what lines the future will develop. Here is the first claim to existence of the Sock and Buskin Alumni. It is our earnest desire that this organization shall stimulate and increase the present interest in the drama, that it shall build up a superior repertoire, and that it shall establish a high standard of excellence in both its production and its performances.

The second objective is linked with the university. The undergraduate society has been for years, outstanding in its accomplishments. Under the leadership of two alumni,

Sock and Buskin has gone far in advance of any undergraduate dramatic organization in this part of the country. As a result of their judgment and persistent efforts, no break in the steady progress of Sock and Buskin has occurred. The society is now in a paradoxical situation. The work which Sock and Buskin strives to do most certainly belongs in the university's sphere of influence, and yet, because Sock and Buskin is an undergraduate organization, it meets certain definite problems and obstacles over which it can not ride. This situation is made all the more unfortunate since the work of the society meets the approval of the university authorities and has the enthusiastic support of a large group of its faculty. Here is the second claim to existence of the Sock and Buskin Alumni. It is our earnest desire that this organization shall keep the ideals of Sock and Buskin constantly before the undergraduates, the university, and the community, that it shall, by helpful participation in the work, point out the proved road to successful accomplishment, so that as a result it may rightfully claim the support of the community, the respect of the undergraduates, the advantages of university sanction, and the incorporation of dramatic work with permanent leaders and improved facilities in that institution from which they have been graduated.

At the first meeting of the Sock and Buskin Alumni Association of the Brown University Dramatic Society, the following officers were elected:

Chairman, Leslie T. Chase.

Vice Chairman, Benjamin W. Brown.

Secretary, S. Everett Wilkins, Jr.
Treasurer, Rufus C. Fuller, Jr.

Business Manager, Theodore L. Sweet.

Stage Manager, Francis P. Armington.

Dr. Bumpus' New Appointment

The following letter from the President of Brown University to the President of the Associated Alumni is self-explanatory:

Mr. Victor A. Schwartz,
731 Hospital Trust Bldg.,
Providence, R. I.

My dear Mr. Schwartz:

A new year is about to open at the University and I am hopeful that it will prove constructive in many ways. Particularly I desire that our alumni become more intimately acquainted with our purposes, our policies and our problems.

With the formal installation of the newly elected alumni Trustees, which will take place at the forthcoming meeting of the Corporation, the alumni, for the first time in our history, will be represented by their full legal quota, fourteen out of a total of forty-two.

During the past year, on the initiative of certain of your members, a Consultation Committee has been appointed, the members of which, three from your organization and three from the Corporation, have already made important suggestions, some of which still require serious study.

The time has arrived when action must be taken to put into operation the important changes that have been made in the Constitution of the Associated Alumni. At least some of these call for united action on the part of all agencies working for the welfare of Brown.

I understand that the Trustees of the Loyalty Fund are revising their methods of procedure. The Corporation is naturally very much interested in this.

Those who have so ably conducted the Alumni Monthly are planning to turn over its management to the Associated Alumni. How shall this be done? Someone must move in the wisest and most effective way in this important matter.

Many of us have felt the need of someone who would assist in coordinating the efforts of Corporation and Alumni, someone who would devote himself to, and would assist in bringing to issue plans and policies of mutual interest to those bodies. Such a man could greatly help in a more general dissemination of information concerning the University and could plan and carry into effect methods for greatly needed increase in revenue, as well as in various other directions.

The Advisory and Executive Committee has authorized me to appoint a person to undertake somewhat multifarious duties along the lines indicated, and others. The position requires someone who is acquainted with the affairs of both Faculty and Corporation on the one hand, and with the alumni and former students on the other. I have asked the Secretary of the Corporation, Dr. H. C. Bumpus, if he would undertake these duties for the current year and he has given his consent to do so.

Trusting that this action will be pleasing to all concerned, and requesting that you will make the appointment known to your membership,

Very sincerely yours,

Clarence A. Barbour.

Father and Son in the Ministry

A pleasant picture of father and son in the ministry (both Brown men) was afforded by the Hartford Courant of August 16, as follows:

It is with a sense of home-coming that Rev. Franklin D. Elmer will preach Sunday morning at his boyhood church, the First Congregational Church of West Hartford. In the evening his son, Rev. Franklin D. Elmer, Jr., will be the evening speaker at the Central Baptist Church.

Mr. Elmer, senior, is the son of the late Rev. Eldridge Bevans Elmer, one time editor of the Connecticut Farmer, later a missionary pastor in Litchfield County, and Minnie Briggs Elmer, a couple who married from the early families of West Hartford. He was educated in the old high school and was the orator on the occasion of the dedication of the new school on Raymond Road.

After graduating at West Hartford Mr. Elmer continued at the Suffield School, Brown University and the University of Chicago. He was ordained for the ministry at the Mt. Morris Baptist Church, New York City, while he was assistant pastor there. His following pastorates have been at Winsted, Conn., and the historic College Churches, Poughkeepsie and Hamilton. While at Winsted, Mr. Elmer was active in state and national Sunday School work and founded the Sunday School Exhibit. In Poughkeepsie he organized the Dutchess County Boy Scouts and has been now for many years a national officer of that movement.

Recently he has traveled extensively in this country and Canada, Europe and Asia making intensive studies of peoples and places for lectures and descriptive articles. Mr. and Mrs. Elmer with their family are spending the summer at Twin Lakes.

"Palestine, Holy Land of Three Religions" will be the subject of a talk to be given by Rev. Franklin D. Elmer, Jr., at the Central Baptist Church tomorrow evening at 7:30. Mr. Elmer is pastor of the First Baptist Church of DeKalb, Illinois; a graduate of Suffield School, Brown University, and the University of Chicago. He has traveled widely, visiting nineteen countries in more than fifty thousand miles of travel. During the past few years he has become known as a writer and lecturer, having spoken before audiences in many parts of the country on Palestine, and experiences in other countries. Mr. Elmer will discuss some of the more interesting phases of present-day Palestine, telling of the name Hady Ali which was given him by Arab friends, of his experiences among Moslems, Jews and Christians in Palestine; and it is expected that he will give the call to prayer as it is given by the Moslem Muezzins from the minarets.

Brown Football Prospects

By Louis B. Palmer, 1928

Once again the football season has rolled around, and, as usual, Brown men everywhere are asking "What sort of team will Brown have this year?" It is still rather early to more than conjecture an answer, but it is safe to say that the season should prove to be better than average.

After three weeks of intensive practice, the ever-non-committal "Tuss" McLaughry, Brown's head football coach, says, "We haven't the backfield we had in 1926, although I think the line is as good or better than that line, and right now we haven't the backs that we had in 1928, though there again the line of 1930 looks pretty nearly as good." There you have it, in a nutshell, neither very optimistic nor extremely gloomy.

However, McLaughry and his aides are fortunate in having a wealth of fine line material, both veteran and untried, and at the present writing (Sept. 25) it seems likely that Brown will have two equally strong lines with which to alternate. Under the present system, there are two teams "A" and "B" which function as units, while a third team "C" is used to furnish substitutes for the first two. Team "A" is really the 'varsity, and the eleven that will undoubtedly start most of the first games is as follows: Schneider, center, Ferree and Johnson, ends; Schein and Mackesey, tackles; Gillies and either Hapgood or Richardson, guards; Gurll, quarterback, Capt. Fogarty and Mahood, Edes or Gilmartin halves, and Rotelli fullback. The lineup is, of course, subject to change, but if the scrimmages held to date can be taken as any indication at all, this team will remain intact for some time to come.

On paper the makeup of team "B" would seem to indicate it to be just as strong as the first team, but so far it has lacked the coordination and team-play that the former has shown. Horton, McDonough, Wiley and Tillinghast alternate at center, Oscar and Wallace Skinner are the guards, Tom Gilbane and Ken Henn, tackles, Sawyer and Allen, ends, Harris or McKeown, quarter, Chase, Gammino and Bill Gilbane, halves and Lee Marshall, full. Some of the men on both teams have shown flashes of brilliance, but for the most part the play has been only fair. But then, playing against teammates and playing in an intercollegiate contest are hardly one and the same thing, and it may be that the team will rise to great heights ere the season ends. As Joe Nutter in the "Evening Bulletin" says, "Beyond the Alps lies Italy—in this case Princeton, Yale, Syracuse, Holy Cross, Columbia and Colgate, and perhaps across those peaks lies fame."

As we said before McLaughry has, however, a host of veterans, only Capt. Bud Edwards, "Nels" Munson, who played every game without a substitution last year, and Jim Monroe, brilliant end, having been lost by graduation. As can be seen by glancing at team "A," it is composed entirely of men who saw much service last year. Jack Ferree is a converted lineman who was a tower of strength last fall, while Vahe Johnson has played end for two years. There are no two finer tackles in college football today than Paul Mackesey and Joe Schein, and they with John Gillies, a veteran of the 1928 season but ineligible last year, are the only men really certain of their jobs on the line. Both Ernie Hapgood and R. W. Richardson played last year, Hapgood in particular being remembered for his fine defensive work. The center position seems to be wide open, with Oscar Schneider getting the call because of his previous experience.

So much for the line. In the backfield, Capt. Link Fogarty seems to have snapped out of the lethargy into which he fell last season, and his work has been receiving especial commendation from the coaches, as has that of his fellow townsman, dusky Joe Mahood, who was handicapped by injuries last year. Dave Edes, a hardworking back, and Bill Gilmartin, a sophomore, are capable replacements. Finkie Gurll, quarter last year, and Andy Rotelli complete what appears to be a potentially strong backfield, which will have an extremely powerful line to open up holes for it.

The substitutes—and for a wonder Brown seems to have plenty this fall—are all sure to see lots of action, although most of them still are not quite the equal of the 'varsity members. The Skinner brothers, who weigh 205 and 215 pounds, transfers from North Carolina, Ralph Miles, a brother of the famous Mike Miles of Princeton, Red McKeown, a transfer from U. S. Military Academy, all newcomers this season, and Lee Marshall, Ken Henn, and Tom Sawyer from last year's eleven are among the outstanding members of team "B".

All in all, barring serious injuries, prospects are bright this fall. The spirit is excellent, things have been going along smoothly, and even the taciturn McLaughry is forced to admit that he has been able to do everything he planned. However, by the time this copy of the Alumni Monthly reaches you, at least one game will have been played and perhaps it will be more possible to form a definite judgment as to whether or not Brown will win the majority of her big games. Brown men have no small amount of faith in McLaughry, who is ably assisted by Coaches Snively, Staff, Snell, Bond and Towle, and even if the team is not undefeated, its supporters will be satisfied if the Bruin ranks near the top when the time comes for him to avenge last year's defeat on Thanksgiving day.

Brown Interests of All Sorts

A New Athletic Fee

At its meeting in June the Corporation authorized the charge of an athletic fee of $10 to each undergraduate and the placing of such charge on the term bill. For this fee the undergraduate is entitled to a season ticket admitting him to all home athletic contests, except swimming. The fee is payable in two installments, $5 in the first semester and $5 in the second semester. In view of this fee the Athletic Council has also adopted the policy of providing towels for all undergraduates making use of the gymnasium.

The athletic council has extended the same privilege with respect to season tickets to graduate students and to all members of the faculty.

The Brown Calendar

The following letter has been sent to the members of the faculty:

For several years members of the faculty and other friends of the University resident in the city have felt the need of an official calendar which would give information concerning events which will be of interest to the university community.

To meet this need the corporation has authorized the publication of the Brown University Weekly Calendar, and has appointed a committee consisting of Professors Van Hoesen and Carmichael and Mr. Nelson B. Jones, Jr., to assume responsibility for the publication. The calendar will be published weekly during the college year from the office of the Brown Union and will be available on the Saturday preceding the week to which it refers. Copies will be distributed to the faculty through the faculty mail room and copies will be mailed to others interested at a nominal charge.

The office of the Brown Union, therefore, will be a clearing house for information concerning events, dates of events, etc. It is expected that members of the faculty and others who are responsible for such events and for dates thereof will make use of this clearing house and will provide it with information concerning forthcoming events. For the benefit of all concerned it is desirable that such notice be given at the earliest possible moment in order that conflicts may be avoided and that events of interest may be given adequate publicity.

Sincerely yours,

A. D. Mead,
Vice President.

A Dutch Scholar at Brown

An interesting example of the community of interest among American and foreign scholars is found in the presence of Mr. Carel Jan Smit of Haarlem, The Netherlands, on the campus of Brown University during the months of June and July.

Mr. Smit holds the degree of master of laws of the University of Amsterdam, which qualifies him to act as barrister in The Netherlands. During 1924-1926 he was engaged in banking in South Africa. From 1926 to the spring of 1930 Mr. Smit was the financial correspondent in London for several Dutch newspapers and also for the Business Week, published in the United States.

Mr. Smit is a candidate for the degree of Doctor of Laws in the University of Amsterdam, the equivalent of the American doctor of philosophy. His thesis is entitled South African Currency and Banking from 1914-1930, in its Relation to the Gold Mining Industry of the Rand.

The Department of Economics provided Mr. Smit with quarters in which to conduct his research and made available to him its library collection. The fact that Mr. Smit has found the library of the Department of Economics of great value in the conduct of his research and that he has found mining reports and other documents which he has not found elsewhere is an interesting commentary on the interest and effort which over a period of 40 years Professor Henry Brayton Gardner gave to the building up of the library of the Department of Economics.

St. Dunstan's and School of Design

By a system of coordination with the New St. Dunstan's College of Sacred Music on Benefit Street and the Rhode Island School of Design, Brown University is now able to provide students at those institutions with important teaching facilities and at the same time secure for itself important reciprocal advantages. For the first time it will be possible, for example, for an undergraduate at Brown to "major" in music. Heretofore students who have desired to specialize in art or music have usually been compelled to do so at the expense of a general education, but under the new arrangement now available in Providence they will be able to combine the advantages of both systems—receiving a full art or musical course and meanwhile gaining a general educational training with the regular academic degree.

Student Assembly Speakers

Cameron Beck, who will be the first speaker at the Honors Day exercises to take place Oct. 23, is in charge of the personnel department of the New York Stock Exchange and has a national reputation as a forceful speaker, as well as an authority on matters pertaining to personnel.

Professor Chauncey B. Tinker of the English Department at Yale has won a name for himself because of his studies of Dr. Samuel Johnson and of James Boswell, the biographer of Johnson. Dr. Tinker has done much to encourage the study of English and the writing of it among his students at Yale.

Dr. John H. Finley, editor of the New York Times, received the honorary degree of LL. D. from Brown in 1915. He has been president of Knox College and the University of the State of New York. He joined the editorial staff of the Times in 1921.

The Jug's 1930 Salutory

"The Brown Jug has shaken off the shackles," declares its editor, Edward H. Gauthier, 1931.

The new Jug, its Managing Board declares, will ignore the gutter appeal which characterizes too many college magazines, and will attempt to find a distinctive place as a commentator on campus affairs rather than as a purveyor of vulgar wit.

"We are tired of living under the ominous shadow of the Dean," says the editor, "tired, too, of catering to the none-too-discriminating palate of the lower classes. In the future the Jug will be written for the college man who likes his humor spicy without being rancid and whimsical without being effeminate. The Jug is not a ladies' book. Neither is it a joke book.

"It purports to be the expression of Brown undergraduates upon topics which interest them, in a jocular vein.

Our aim is ride everyone who needs it, gently if possible, cleverly if we can, and mercilessly if necessary."

Brown Union Board

Four new members have been appointed to the Board of Governors of the Brown Union. Two of these men are of the class of 1932 and two of the class of 1933. Both fraternity and non-fraternity groups are represented in each class.

P. F. Gleason, Sigma Phi Sigma, and H. J. Landay represent the Junior Class. Those appointed from the Sophomore Class are E. C. Jones, Phi Kappa Psi, and T. J. McCaffrey, Sigma Chi.

Brown won from Rhode Island State 7-0 in the first football game of the season at home on Sept. 27. Injuries kept Capt. Fogarty, Brown and Hapgood out of the match. The Brunonians were not forced to reveal any of their special plays. Attendance 8,000.

Brown won the second football game of the year at Providence on Oct. 4, beating Worcester Polytechnic Institute with ease by the score of 54-0. Although Worcester did not furnish the same quality of opposition that Rhode Island State afforded, still Brown's attack was much smoother than a week before. During much of the game McLaughry was able to use 3d and 4th string substitutes. Attendance 6,000.

Chapel services are now held on Wednesday and Thursday mornings at 9 o'clock, in Sayles Hall; Thursdays for the Senior and Junior classes and for special students; Wednesdays for the Sophomore and Freshman classes. Attendance will be required of all undergraduates.

The largest Freshman football squad—84—in Brown's history responded this fall to the summons.

With the Faculty

President Barbour will be one of the preachers at Lafayette College during the academic year. He will also speak at many other colleges and schools, in accord with his annual custom.

Professors James A. Hall and Samuel J. Berard of the Division of Engineering attended the annual meeting of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education at McGill University and L'Ecole Polytechnique, Montreal, late in June. Professor Berard represented Brown at the session of the society held at Carnegie Institute of Technology, June 12-21, and spoke at one of the conferences on "The Content of a Descriptive Geometry Course."

Professor Alfonso de Salvio of the Department of Romance Languages is serving this year as president of the American Association of Teachers of Italian.

Professor Horatio Smith of the Department of Romance Languages was one of the guest speakers at the French School of Middlebury College during the summer. In his talk, "Rousseau and We," he discussed the influence of Rousseau upon present civilization, according to the Burlington, Vt., News.

Professor Ben W. Brown of the English Department was a member of the faculty of the summer school at the University of Vermont, giving courses in Shakespeare and the modern drama. During his work there he spoke before the Burlington Rotary Club on the state of the drama and the outlook with particular reference to the legitimate stage. He told his auditors that "the talkies are not killing the legitimate stage any more than the Italian and ballad opera killed it in England two hundred years ago." He also paid his respects to the current school of theatre managers, "bred in the tradition of the counting house, not the theatre."

Robert W. Kenny of the English Department acted as literary editor of the Providence Journal while Bertrand K. Hart was on a European trip from June until early in September.

The Brown Clubs Report

The Regional Plan Begins

ORGANIZATION of the Board of Directors under the new Constitution of the Associated Alumni, approved at the annual meeting last Commencement Day, began early in the summer and was nearly complete as the 167th academic year opened on the Hill. Both President Schwartz and the Alumni Secretary have been busy corresponding with the clubs in the five districts; President Barbour has given full co-operation; and the Alumni Office is looking forward to an active and progressive year.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee in June, President Schwartz announced the following appointments to the Board of Directors: Association of Class Secretaries, George L. Miner, one year; Henry S. Chafee, two years; Alumni Monthly, Henry R. Palmer, two years; six members at large, Henry G. Marsh, Homer N. Sweet and Charles H. Pinkham, one year each, and Lester L. Falk, Dennis F. O'Brien and James S. Allen, two years each.

President Barbour appointed the following Alumni Trustees for terms of two years each: C. C. White, Arthur W. Pinkham, William Allan Dyer. He also named Professor Robert F. Chambers as the Faculty member.

The New England District, at a meeting under the auspices of the Brown Club of Boston on Sept. 10, elected Dr. Edwin A. Locke as regional vice president and Fred H. Gabbi of Portland, Me., and Ralph

A. Armstrong of Springfield, Mass., as directors for one and two years respectively.

As final copy for this issue of the Alumni Monthly was on its way to the printer, plans were being made for the first meeting of the Board of Directors at which appointment of a new Executive Committee, the working body of the Associated Alumni, was a major item on the docket.

New York

Approximately fifty prospective members of the Class of 1934 in Brown University gathered at the Hotel Wentworth, headquarters of the Brown Club of New York, on Saturday, Sept. 13, to take part in a reception, luncheon and entertainment arranged for them under the auspices of the Board of Governors of the Brown Club of New York.

With President Dennis F. O'Brien of the club as master of ceremonies, and with T. E. Tolson, '06, owner of the Hotel Wentworth, and N. A. Tufts, '00, manager, ably assisting, the affair was a memorable one both for the Freshmen-to-be and for the alumni who acted as hosts. These alumni included President O'Brien, Hugh W. MacNair, former president; William R. Dorman, of the Brown Board of Trustees; Dr. C. C. Tillinghast, head master of the Horace Mann School for Boys; Alexander Graham, Hoey Hennessy, Earl W. Harrington, president of the Brown Engineering Association; C. F. Savage, Paul D. O'Brien, W. Bruce Loomis, Lee H. White, treasurer of the Brown Club of New York; Philip Lukin, Don Ball, who provided splendid entertainment, Abe Hecht, Paul H. Burns, T. K. Ferry and others.

At a general reception in the rooms of the club, the members of the Freshman Class were introduced to one another and to the alumni, and schedules of the athletic events of the fall season were given them with the compliments of the Brown University Athletic Council. After the reception the entire party, some seventy-five in number, partook of the luncheon prepared and served under the direction of Messrs. Tolson and Tufts.

W. R. Dorman offered prayer and President O'Brien followed with a short speech of welcome. Then he introduced Don Ball, entertainer par excellence and at present one of the lively spirits of the Columbia Broadcasting System. Bruce Loomis, manager of the Brown Musical Clubs when Ball was the magnet of the clubs, also had a hand in the introduction, and as soon as the applause was over, Don got up on the piano, swung his ukelele into position and gave a choice program of songs and sketches. During the luncheon he also led the gathering in Brown songs.

Dr. Tillinghast gave an inspiring talk, mingling his remarks with many amusing incidents in his career as a teacher. Mr. Dorman told the guests of the opportunities ahead of them; and the gathering ended with Don Ball leading in the singing of Alma Mater and Paul O'Brien swinging everybody into a real Brown cheer.

President O'Brien, in a letter to the Alumni Office, said that the club was planning to have several gatherings this fall and winter in the hope of stimulating and increasing membership and fostering the spirit of Brown in the New York area. As we have said previously, he is a leader of the right type, and we hope that every Brown man in New York and its suburbs will get behind him to make Brown better known in the metropolitan district.

Chicago

The Brown Club of Chicago is meeting every Friday between the hours of 12 noon and 1:30 o'clock at the Marshall Field Grill, and it will always be happy to greet any Brown visitors to the city at that time. President J. J. McKenna and his executive committee have outlined a program for the year which merits the support of all good Brown men in Chicago and neighborhood. This program includes a luncheon for entering students from Chicago (of which we expect to have an account for the November Monthly), a football smoker this month (on the day of either the Brown-Princeton or Brown Yale game), a concert by the Brown Musical Clubs, if satisfactory arrangements can be made, and the annual dinner, which is always a fine affair to attend.

Joseph L. Strauss, Jr., '28, is the secretary of the Chicago Club. His new office is at 626 Federal Street, the Hillison & Etten Company, and we urge Brown men visiting Chicago, or going there to work, to get in immediate touch with him.

Brunonians Far and Near

Charles Frederick Eaton, landscape artist of wide reputation, died at his home in Montecito, Santa Barbara, Calif., on Aug. 21, 1930. He was born in Providence Dec. 12, 1842, the son of Levi Curtis and Sarah Brown (Mason) Eaton. He prepared for college under tutors in France and Italy and was at Brown for two years. After leaving College Hill he studied art in Paris for three years and continued to live in Europe until 1886. Then he returned to this country, settled in California and occupied himself with painting, wood carving and landscape architecture. He was the landscape artist for many of the fine estates in Montecito. He was also an authority on antique carved furniture, of which he had a rare collection. He was married, first, to Helen J. Mitchell of Philadelphia in April, 1867, and, second, to Florence Baxter of Santa Barbara, June 1, 1898. Mrs. Eaton survives him, together with a daughter, Elizabeth Eaton of Paris, and two sons, Charles F. Eaton, Jr., and Louis Eaton.

Dr. George B. Peck was one of the only two surviving officers of the Second Rhode Island Volunteer Infantry who observed the 69th anniversary of the first battle of Bull Run on July 21. Peck was elected chaplain at the annual meeting of the First and Second Regiments Veteran Association held in connection with the anniversary.

Richard Smith Howland, one of the outstanding newspaper editors of his generation, died in Milledgeville, Ga., July 10, 1930. He was formerly manager, treasurer and editor of the Providence Journal, and he did much to give that newspaper a strong political independence. He was born in New Bedford, Mass., July 12, 1847, the son of Matthew and Rachel (Smith) Howland. He came to Brown from the Friends Academy, New Bedford, won his A. B. with the class, and his A. M. in 1871. He studied for a period at the University of Berlin and from 1871 to 1885 was in the whaling business, most of the time in San Francisco. From 1880 to 1885 he was agent in San Francisco for Jonathan Bourne's ships. In 1885 he became business manager of the Providence Journal and editor in 1890. Under his regime the Journal threw off its hidebound Republicanism and became an independent newspaper. It prospered, too, and when Howland retired in 1905 he had reason to feel that both the Journal and the Evening Bulletin "had materially broadened the field of their usefulness and influence." After his retirement he went to Asheville, N. C., where he was president of the Asheville and Craggy Mountain Railway and a director of the Atlantic and North Carolina Railway. During his years in Providence he was a director of the Industrial Trust Company and a member of the Hope Club and the University Club of New York. He was married Dec.

23, 1869, to Mary Hoppin of Providence, who died July 30, 1921. He is survived by three sons, Stanley, Reginald and Guy Morris Howland, and a daughter, Miss Rachel Howland. His oldest son, Frederick Hoppin Howland, who died in 1916, was a correspondent in the Boer War and later editor of the Providence Tribune. Howland's fraternity was Chi Psi. The Journal, commenting editorially on his career, said: "He was no cautious imitator, no instinctive follower of accepted practices; rather he blazed new trails, explored new territories, sought new goals. He had the characteristic New England qualities of ingenuity and adaptability. . . Today the Journal bears witness to the part he played in its upbuilding and development."

William E. Lincoln has presented the John Hay Library with two copies of the "Lincoln, Pearce, Porter, Ayer and Related Families," a genealogy compiled in memory of Mary Porter Lincoln, 1846-1920, and published by The Knickerbocker Press. The genealogy gives full notes of many Brown alumni and in addition contains valuable material about Brown in the period, 1864-68, when Lincoln was an undergraduate.

Dr. James Ozias Bullock, retired, died in Princeville, Ill., in January. The Alumni Office has been informed by Professor Emeritus Wilfred H. Munro. Bullock received his medical degree at the University of the City of New York in 1872 and had practiced until his retirement some years ago. He was a member of Delta Upsilon.

1873

William Eaton Foster, active in the Providence Public Library for more than fifty years, died at his home in Providence on Sept. 10, 1930. An account of his career will appear in the next issue of the Monthly.

1874

Arthur Livingston Mason died in Bronxville, N. Y., June 24, 1930, following a long illness. He was born in Providence Feb. 24, 1852, the son of Earl P. and Lucy Ann (Larchar) Mason. He prepared for college at Mowry and Goff's School and in schools abroad and was at Brown for a year. After leaving college he became secretary of the Rhode Island Locomotive Works as well as trustee of the estate of his father. He also served as treasurer of the Continental Steamboat Company, president and treasurer of the Newport Engineering Works and trustee of the estate of Isaac Hartshorn. He was married June 20, 1875, to Edith B. Hartshorn; he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Edith L. M. Keller, wife of Arthur I. Keller, the artist, Mrs. Robert T. Merrill, 2d, of West Palm Beach, Fla., a son, Lion G. Mason of Montgomery Ala., and ten grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. He belonged to the Rhode Island Historical Society, the Providence Art Club and Psi Upsilon.

1876

Benjamin West Smith, attorney, died in Reading, Mass., on July 28, 1930. He had been a practicing lawyer since his admission to the Rhode Island bar in 1878 and had lived for the last fifteen years or so in Reading. He was born in Warwick, R. I., June 21, 1856, the son of Charles W. and Elizabeth R. (Le Valley) Smith. He prepared at the Providence High School and, after graduation from college, studied law in Providence. He received his A. M. degree in 1879. He was never married.

Charles Seaver Scott died in the Waltham, Mass., Hospital May 8, 1930, after a six weeks' illness. He began life as a teacher and a minister; for many years he was identified with real estate and insurance in Belmont and adjacent towns. He was born in Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 15, 1855, the son of Rev. Jacob Richardson and Catherine F. (Seaver) Scott. He prepared at the Chelsea, Mass., High School and at Brown was an excellent student. He had the salutatory oration at Commencement. He planned to enter the ministry after graduation, but first taught school for a year in Wrentham, Mass. Then he registered at Newton Theological Institution, from which he graduated in 1881. Ordained as a Baptist minister in the same year, he held pastorates in Franklin, Ind., Hackensack, N. J., and Somerville, Marlboro and Waverley, Mass. Resigning from the Waverley Church in 1899 and retiring from the ministry, he turned to real estate and insurance, in which he continued active until his last illness. He was married Sept. 25, 1881, to Jennie Thompson Pond, who survives him, together with three children, Roscoe E. Scott, Cleveland, O., Mrs. Mary Seaver Barss, Montclair, N. J., and Mrs. Janet L. MacKenzie of Belmont. Two brothers, a sister and seven grandchildren also survive him. Scott was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, two local fraternities, Sigma Phi and Phi Kappa Alpha, the Masons and the Society of Mayflower Descendants. Through his mother he was descended in the tenth generation from William Brewster, Elder of Plymouth Colony.

Dr. Walter L. Munro's wife, Sarah Frances (Rose) Munro, died in Providence on Aug. 18, 1930. Mrs. Munro was a lineal descendant of Governor Jeremy Clark and Governor John Cranston, royal Governors of Rhode Island. Besides her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Dr. Rose C. Munro, a son, Harold W. Munro, '13, and a sister, Mrs. Charles C. Newhall.

1880

The Ogden, Utah, Standard-Examiner of July 11, 1930, noted the return of W. E. Archibald from his class reunion and said that "on his way home Mr. Archibald visited with relatives in Vermont. He also visited in Canada."

Edward A. Smiley, member of the class in the Freshman year, is proprietor and manager of the Hotel Marlborough, East Orange, N. J.

1882

Dr. William H. Tolman's son, George L. Tolman, Vice Consul of the United States at Sarnia, Ont., and Miss Isabel Cutting, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seth H. Cutting, were married in Brooklyn, N. Y., on June 23, 1930. The younger Tolman recently was transferred to Sarnia from Helsingfors, Finland, where he was on duty for four years.

1883

S. Hale Baker's correct address, he reports, is 8 Clapp Street, Malden, Mass. Baker is with the American Woolen Company in the Boston office at 1 Federal Street.

Professor Frank W. Shepardson of the Colgate Faculty is the pleased possessor of the card which entitles him to the privileges of the "Fraternal Fifties" of Beta Theta Pi. The card was given him by the Colgate Chapter, in which he has always taken a friendly interest.

Dr. Edwin Bates Harvey, practicing physician in Providence for thirty-seven years, died in New York, June 23, 1930, following an acute attack of nephritis. He was born in Providence Jan. 13, 1861, the son of Edwin Bates and Abby H. (Whiting) Harvey. He prepared at the University Grammar School and after graduation became a teacher, first in Plainfield, N. J., and then in the Ogontz School, near Philadelphia. He received his A. M. from Brown in 1887, and entered the medical department of the University of the City of New York, from which he was graduated with the degree of M. D. in 1889. After post-graduate work in eye, ear, nose and throat in New York, he returned to Providence as house officer at the Rhode Island Hospital, where he served from November, 1890, to May, 1892. Then he commenced practice for himself. For thirty-five years he was examining physician for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. From 1895 to 1901 he was a member of the Providence School Committee. He also belonged to the Providence Medical Society, the Rhode Island Medical Society, the Providence Art Club and Beta Theta Pi. He was married Feb. 18, 1902, to Anne Mason Hinds, who survives him.

The Alumni Office has recorded with regret the death of William Burnside Frackelton in Los Angeles, Calif., May 21, 1930. Born in Providence, July 5, 1862, the son of Thomas and Agnes (Winslow) Frackelton, he prepared at the Providence High School and after graduation became principal of the school in Millbury, Mass. In 1888 he removed to California and from then until his death was a teacher in the public schools of Pasadena, San Pedro, Los Angeles and other places in the southern part of the State. From 1910 to 1930 he was principal of the Second Street Grammar School, Los Angeles. He was married June 4, 1889, to Miss Alice E. Parker. He is survived by a son, Harold P. Frackelton of Burbank, Calif., and a daughter, Mrs. Lester L. Carden of Santa Ana, and several grandchildren. He was a member of the University Club of Los Angeles, where he made his home for many years.

Dr. Daniel H. Fuller and Mrs. Fuller enjoyed a six weeks' vacation in Europe during the summer, visiting Oberammergau and other cities. Fuller has written the Class Secretary that he hopes to be present at the Reunion next June.

The death of Phil J. Reid in Detroit July 21, 1930, removed one of the best known and beloved newspaper men from the Middle West field. For more than twenty years Reid was managing editor of the Detroit Free Press, and he had the reputation of being a great developer of young writers. Among his "boys" have been Edgar A. Guest, the poet, E. A. Batchelor, '07, and Joe Jackson, both nationally known writers about sports. He was born Philip Joseph Reid in Providence, July 19, 1865, the son of Patrick Henry and Katherine (Finnegan) Reid. He came to Brown from the Providence High School and in the summer after his graduation played with the Boston National League baseball team. He had intended to study law, but he went into the United States mail service instead and remained in it for two years. Then he began newspaper work in Providence and in 1890 left for Detroit to be sporting editor of the old Detroit Tribune. He joined the Free Press staff in 1891, was night city editor, 1894-96, city editor, 1896-1905, news editor, 1905-06, and managing editor from that time until his death. In 1927 he was elected an alumnus member of Rhode Island Alpha Phi Beta Kappa. He was a member of the Michigan Historical Society, the Detroit Historical Society, the University Press Club, the American Society of Newspaper Editors, the Harmonie Society and Phi Kappa. He was married Oct. 4, 1893, to Nellie J. Corcoran, who died in 1929. He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Helen A. Halla and Mrs. Marian K. Stowe of Detroit, and Mrs. Madeline L'Etourneau of Chicago.

Theodore Francis Green was a candidate for nomination for Governor of Rhode Island on the Democratic ticket as this item was being written. He announced in August that he would enter the field, saying that the request of 37 out of 39 chairmen of Democratic town and city committees that he be a candidate "comes almost as a command." Green has been reelected a member of the General Council of the American Bar Association.

The Anglo-Belgian Times of Aug. 2, 1930, printed in Brussels, Belgium, carried a reprint of an article in the American Foreign Service Journal reviewing the admirable career of H. Tuck Sherman, Vice Consul of the United States at Antwerp, who on July 1 celebrated the 40th anniversary of his entrance into the Consular Service. Sherman, the article said, "is held in very high esteem, not only in Antwerp, but throughout Belgium. He has become a part and parcel of the life of that great trading city, but has retained his Americanism and his enthusiasm for all that is American. He and Mrs. Sherman have achieved the thing they set out to accomplish. He has made for himself a happy, contented and useful career in the service of our Government, and together they have brought up their three sons in such a way that they can rise up and call them blessed."

1890

Edwin Collins Frost, writing from Teramo, Italy, in the summer, said that in consequence of the merging of two of the leading Italian banks, his address had been changed to read in care of Credito Italiano, 20 Piazza di Spagna, Rome.

Professor Charles H. Forbes of Phillips Andover Academy received the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters from Amherst last June.

Rev. Albert E. Kingsley's address is 230 North Street, Saco, Me.

President John L. Alger of the Rhode Island College of Education attracted considerable newspaper attention as a result of his declaration in his baccalaureate address late in June that there is no such thing as personal freedom. He made the remark in discussing prohibition and its opportunities and added: "I am not free to do what is not for the best good of my college and of my country. I do not believe that our people are yet ready to throw up their hands and say it (prohibition) was a mistake and a failure." The Providence Journal editorially called President Alger's doctrine a false one, asserting that "to preach to those about to be entrusted with the intellectual upbringing of our children that there is no such thing as personal freedom is a disservice to the State threatening irreparable injury to its future development."

Professor Lyman C. Newell of Boston University, where he has been teaching chemistry since 1904, has been elected a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

The Bates College Alumni Association, at its last annual meeting, elected Professor A. N. Leonard an honorary member. The Bates Alumnus said that Dr. Leonard "is a graduate of Brown, but he could not have given to Bates more wholehearted loyalty and service if he had actually received his degree here. It was with very great pleasure, therefore, that the alumni, as a mark of their great affection, invited him to join their fellowship."

Charles H. Merriman has qualified as a Class C director of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston to serve until Dec. 31, 1931. In order to accept his new position he resigned as vice president, director and secretary of the Blackstone Canal National Bank of Providence and as trustee of the People's Savings Bank.

A Hundred Years

Verses for the Centennial Celebration of the founding of Rhode Island Alpha of Phi Beta Kappa at Brown University, Providence, Saturday, September 27, 1930.

BY HENRY ROBINSON PALMER

A hundred marching summers with banners in the sky,
A hundred trooping autumns with torches flaring high,
A hundred trudging winters of pilgrim garb and gait,
A hundred springs on eagles' wings we come to celebrate.
Who dares to mark a boundary on Time's pre-empted seas?
We meet to praise a century and bound it where we please,
And where we please to bound it its crystal length shall span,
Securely lit and definite, another Age of Man.
An age of restless yearning, an age of eager force
That found a giant helper in the plashing watercourse;
That tamed the lightning, clove the clod and rode the airy sea,
But lost its way, in the world today, to the world that is to be.

II

In placid Eighteen Thirty our epic century starts,
With one-horse-powered chaises and two-ox-powered carts,
With candlelight and hearthlight its chronicles commence,
And even-eyed simplicity, and faith in Providence.
Providence—our Providence—was still a tranquil town,
With apple trees and lilacs upblossoming to Brown,
With stately Georgian mansions as red as sunset's show,
And pillars white as dogwood, and doorways like the snow.
Its rainbow-printed gardens flung out their splendor wide,
And merged their terraced sweetness with the saltiness of the tide,
And Babylon's high gardens and Lebanon's tall trees
Are not for us as glamorous and beautiful as these.
Companioning the lilacs and friendly with the phlox,
Upsprang a tangled forest from dusky-shadowed docks,
Slim rigging, swaying canvas and polished yellow spars,
And Freedom's flag a-fluttering its four-and-twenty stars.
Grim Commerce on the waterfront sat measuring its gains,
While Learning on the hilltop was meagre for its pains—
Meagre in body and slender in estate,
But somehow fine in shape and line, and master of its fate.

Gay lingo in the alleys chall stricken by her foes,

 meet the thronging years
 rophesy their fears.
 lack engulfing cave,
 he ledge beneath the wave,
 ved us in the past
 t gales blow, and keep us to the world-convulsing war not know before;

 drest our minds in doubt,
 dragged new grievings out.
 ss the spinning sphere,
 any who will hear;
 the white moon sets,
 nappy and forgets.

And never since the world began were such gay marvels seen—
 Such sky-invading spires, such gods from the machine;
 Such distance-devastation, such mammoth wheels and wires
 To manifest their miracles and serve our new desires.

But if the roar and clatter strikes hard upon our ears,
 And if our childlike plan of heaven dissolves and disappears,
 Yet Beauty sits beyond compare upon her ageless throne,
 And makes her old appeal to us and marks us for her own.
 Her spell is on the scarlet wood and on the yellow strand;
 She yields her charms to barren farms and sparkles in the sand;
 She carves the summit with her storm and paints the road with dew
 Where the sunrise aster purples and the chicory flashes blue.

If we but give our souls to her, she gives her soul to us,
 And the harsh ugliness of earth is no more clamorous—
 As the East Wind's sounding fury at eventide is stilled,
 And the sea's unruffled bosom with the high stars is filled.

And if there comes a sated day when Beauty's magic palls,
 We still must bless Unselfishness and listen where she calls,
 And where the simple altars of the Self-Forgetful rise
 Rejoice to find the beauteous mind in those who sacrifice.

Yet if this loftier beauty suffices not our need,
 Out of the ruins of belief we'll shape another creed,
 And where our old-time formula is nothing but a wraith,
 Confronted by a broader Truth we'll build a broader Faith.
 There is no high instinctive hope our hearts must hold aloof,
 Though Science with her ruthless hand tears down our starry roof;
 There is no primal confidence the spirit need despise,
 Though every year our far frontier goes crashing through the skies.

VI

A hundred blooming summers with beauty in their eyes,
 A hundred flaming autumns mysteriously wise,
 A hundred shining winters, a hundred times the May,
 A century run around the sun we celebrate today.

When we are dust as they are dust, our Brothers of the Key,
 Who stablished on this emerald hill our old society,
 And others hold its lamp aloft, and fittingly rehearse
 The Book of Revelation of their widened universe;

When their bookshelves groan with knowledge, and fact is piled on fact,

Like Ossa on tall Pelion incredibly impact;
 When Babel's new ambition upbuilds its tapering tower,
 And every quickened impulse proclaims its larger power,

May sweet serenity endure above the clash of strife,
 And calm Philosophy remain the proven Guide of Life.
 But hark! the tramping Future, the cadence of its drums—
 Our comrade century is gone; another century comes.

Professor Alexander Meiklejohn's experimental college at the University of Wisconsin has begun its fourth year, thus quieting all rumors and reports that the experiment would be discontinued by the University authorities.

J. D. E. Jones and his son, Arnold W. Jones, former Yale star, won their fifth Father and Son doubles title in tennis at the Longwood Cricket Club, Brookline, Mass., on Aug. 30. "The elder Jones supported the superlative tennis of his son Arnold with unflinching steadiness and the outcome was never in doubt," said one of the newspaper stories.

Robert R. Goff, director of mathematics in the high schools of New Britain, Conn., in co-operation with Gordon R. Mirick, vice principal of the Lincoln School, Columbia University, and George W. Mullins, Professor of Mathematics, Barnard College, is writing a series of text books in mathematics. A "Work and Test Book in Elementary Algebra" has already been published; a "Work and Test Book in Plane Geometry" is now in the printer's hands; a "Work and Test Book in Intermediate Algebra" will soon follow; and a text book in plane trigonometry is in preparation. Row, Peterson and Co. are the publishers.

Dr. C. H. Griffin, chief police surgeon of Providence, is back on duty after an illness that laid him low shortly after he moved into his new house at 376 Cole Avenue.

George S. Ellis has been active in promoting interest in the Brown University Alumni Cup, awarded each year by the Brown men in Western Maine to the high school basketball team which wins the tournament at the University of Maine. This year Houlton High and Cheverus High of Portland appeared in the playoff, and Cheverus won. Then it was found that a member of the Cheverus team was over the age limit, and the final game was thrown out. As a result, the Brown Cup was returned to Ellis's custody. Brown has had a lot of excellent advertising because of the cup, and Ellis and other Brown men in Portland have done their part in keeping the name of Brown prominent in a dignified way.

Henry D. Sharpe has been re-elected a director of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, representing the foreign trade group. Sharpe was one of six speakers, nationally known, who participated in a country-wide broadcast on April 26, the subject being the progress of business recovery since the slump last fall.

Theron Clark, who has just begun his seventh year as Registrar of the University of Southern California, was the delegate from Brown to the semi-centennial celebration of U. S. C. held at Los Angeles in June.

George McK. McClellan had an article in the May issue of The Current History Magazine under the title "The Rebirth of Disarmed Germany."

1896

John B. Lewis, who made his first flight in an airplane eleven years ago, has won his license as a pilot. During the summer Lewis flew regularly between his office in Providence and his house in Wakefield, R. I.

1897

The sudden death of Herbert Cleaveland Miller in Memphis, Tenn., on July 29, 1930, came as a shock to his friends in Providence and elsewhere. At the time of his death Miller was doing special sales work in southern territory for the Steele-Lobell Co., Baltimore, manufacturers of shoe polishes, dressings and leather finishes. He had been with the Everett & Barron Co., Providence, engaged in similar manufacturing, for thirty years before he resigned at the end of 1927 to go to Baltimore. He was born in Amherst, Mass., June 1, 1875, the son of Charles H. and Eva (Cleaveland) Miller. He came to Brown from Amherst High School and went with the Everett & Barron Co. shortly after his graduation. When he resigned, he was secretary and general manager. He was an authority on leather finishes; with the Baltimore company he acted as consulting chemist. He was married June 7, 1904, to Mary Lovell Fenner of Providence, and of the union three children, Marion, Cleaveland F., and Herbert C. Miller, Jr., were born. Cleaveland F. Miller is a midshipman at the United States Naval Academy and Herbert C. Miller, Jr., is an undergraduate at the Johns Hopkins University. The children and his second wife, who was Mrs. Ethel Dale Williams and whom he married Jan. 11, 1923, survive him. Miller was a member of the University Club, the Warwick Country Club, the Turks Head Club, the Providence Engineering Society and Delta Upsilon.

Dr. Edwin C. Broome, Superintendent of Schools in Philadelphia, received the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters at the Commencement exercises of the Rhode Island College of Education in June. Broome gave the principal address of the day. He has been prominently mentioned as the next president of the Rhode Island State College.

George Trevor, writing in the New York Sun of July 5, 1930, made "a belated bow" to "Daddy Jim" Coombs for being the originator of the direct pass from center to the punter in the days when he was the pivot of the Brown line and the late Charlie McCarthy, '96, was the full-back and kicker. The pass was first used in the Brown-Dartmouth game and caused a hot dispute on the ground that it was illegal, according to Coombs, who added that Walter Camp, always on the lookout for new ideas in football, promptly borrowed the direct pass from Brown.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has been named a grand officer of the Order of the Crown by King Albert of Belgium.

Dennis F. O'Brien was prominently mentioned in George M. Cohan's reminiscences which appeared in the New York Evening World during the summer. "He was about my age," said Mr. Cohan, "and, due to his interest in my labors of uplifting the stage—he knew all about consonants, vowels, spelling—I let him correct my manuscripts. Since then he has become one of the most, and in my mind the most, celebrated theatrical lawyers in America. . . . He used to josh me about putting everything on paper the way it was to be spoken on the stage. Words were misspelled, sentences jumbled. And how he would laugh when I told him the fellows I wrote for couldn't read anyhow."

Willard L. Case has begun his duties as vice president and secretary of the Public Indemnity Company, New York, to which position he was elected last summer.

Albee L. Ladd writes that he is a civil engineer on railroad and highway construction in South America, but that his home address continues to be 2309 Girard Ave., South, Minneapolis, Minn. Ladd is associated with Winston Bros. Company, construction engineers.

A portrait of the late John D. Sage by Frank Myers has been hung in the library of the offices of the Union Central Life Insurance Co., Cincinnati, of which Sage was president at the time of his death. The portrait is a commemorative gift from the company directors.

Wallace R. Lane of Chicago, one of the University's alumni trustees, has been elected a trustee of Williston Academy, from which he was graduated in 1895.

President Harvey N. Davis of Stevens Institute of Technology, as a result of a gift of $40,000, has organized a department of smoke abatement in connection with the college work and already has an expert on the job of studying the problem of smoke to find a way to abate it satisfactorily.

Berton L. Maxfield has recently been elected one of the trustees and the treasurer of Payne Fund, Inc.

Dr. Frederick Peabody Drowne, physician, naturalist and veteran of the World War, died in Warren, R. I., June 27, 1930, after having been in poor health for some time. A descendant of Solomon Drowne, graduate in 1773, and the University's first professor of Botany, he was born in Providence, Jan. 14, 1880, the son of Christopher R. and Alice (Wheeler) Drowne. He prepared at the Providence High School and, after two years on the Hill, entered the College of Physicians and Surgeons in Baltimore, from which he received his M. D. degree in 1904. He was president of his class at the college. He commenced practice in Warren, but withdrew after three years to move to a Virginia plantation, where he made experiments with plants of all kinds and greatly increased his knowledge of botany. In 1912 he resumed practice; at the outbreak of the World War he enlisted (he had also served in the Spanish-American War) and was active overseas as a captain, Medical Corps, U. S. A. After his discharge in 1919 he returned to Warren and continued practice until October, 1926, when he left this country as a member of the Whitney-Sanford expedition, backed by the American Museum of Natural History, to study life in the islands of the Solomon and New Hebrides groups. Following his return in 1928, he gave lectures on some of the phases of the trip. He also wrote for the scientific magazines, and was extremely fond of music and art. He was married Sept. 6, 1902, to Lila C. White of Broadrun, Va., who survives him, together with two daughters, Misses Mary Virginia and Christine Russell Drowne. His fraternity was Delta Tau Delta.

Nathaniel O. Howard died at the Rhode Island Hospital, Providence, on Sept. 14, 1930, after a short illness. The Alumni Monthly will give an account of his life and activities in the next issue. To Mrs. Howard and her three sons sincere sympathy is given in the name of the class and of the many Brown men who knew Howard.

Charles L. Osler is the Rhode Island representative of the Rodney Hunt Machine Co., textile machinery, of Orange, Mass.

The Congdon & Carpenter Company, with which Arthur L. Philbrick is associated as treasurer, opened its new warehouse and offices at 405 Promenade Street, Providence, in August, and Phil was right on the job of showing his friends through the fine modern plant that his company has built for its business.

Joe Church, whose son was our Class Baby, has the pleasure and distinction of reporting that he is also the first class grandparent. On Aug. 6, 1930, his grandson, Rupert Paul Baumgartner, Jr., was born. Congratulations from the class are certainly in order. We hope Joe has commenced to direct the young man's thoughts to Brown. Joe at present is in charge of the activities of several National Guard organizations in and about Cleveland. His address is Capt. Joseph Church, U. S. A., Gray's Armory, Cleveland, O.

Bob Murphy, in "Bottom of the World," was a recent major attraction at one of Providence's talkie theatres. The picture was taken on South Georgia, in the Antarctic regions, under the auspices of the American Museum of Natural History, and featured Dr. Robert Cushman Murphy as lecturer. Bob made a fine lecturer, dignified, not too deep, with touches of humor.

Shown seated at his desk, Bob gave an introductory talk and then launched, as invisible commentator, into one of the most amazing and fascinating pictures of the kind ever seen here, as more than one Brown spectator said. The audience got its thrilling fill of spouting whales, seals at play and at war, the weird albatross, wildly spectacular snowy mountains and icy seas, and, best of all, the troupes of absurdly dignified penguins. Bob got his biggest laugh when he referred to the appearance of some youthful furry penguins as "collegiate." And if they didn't look like raccoon-clad College Hill climbers then the audience missed its guess. One remarkable fact about the scenes was that the living creatures showed little or no camera shyness nor seemed to be disturbed because their acts were being photographed; it was all natural as well as exciting drama. At the close Bob appeared once more to take a bow and the audience paid him the well deserved tribute of giving a hand to the handsome lecturer. "Talking Picture Epics" releases the film, and Bob says he has another coming along about "Bird Islands of Peru."

Wendell R. Swint's new address is du Pont Bldg., Wilmington, Del. Swint, who has been European manager for E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., with his headquarters in London, wrote in July: "After nearly seven years of very interesting work in Europe, I am coming back to America to live, having been appointed director of the Foreign Relations Department of the du Pont Company. I shall hope to get up to Providence a little more frequently than I have done recently."

Charles M. King, bursar and business manager of the Hackley School, Tarrytown, N. Y., has begun his second year at the school. In a note not long ago Charlie said that President Barbour would be the vesper preacher at Hackley on Jan. 18 next.

Dana G. Munro's appointment as United States Minister to Hayti was received with approbation on all sides. As one newspaper story from Washington said: "Mr. Munro is regarded here as an authority on Caribbean affairs, having devoted much of his career to that subject." In June, Munro received his A. B. degree from Brown, with the Class of 1912.

Jerome F. J. McGehearty died in Chicago, July 12, 1930, after an illness of some three months. He had been in the employ of Swift & Company ever since his graduation. He was born in Providence, Sept. 30, 1888, the son of Francis and Margaret (Flynn) McGehearty. He prepared at the Technical and Hope Street High Schools and after taking his Sc. B. in civil engineering went with Swift & Company as a draftsman. He was head draftsman for the company at Fort Worth, Tex., 1913-18, efficiency engineer, 1918-19, and assistant master mechanic from 1920 until illness forced him to give up. He was married in June, 1916, to Anna M. Dougherty of Fort Worth, who survives him, together with two children, Jerome and Marilyn McGehearty. He also leaves two brothers and two sisters. In college McGehearty played on the class football team and was a member of Phi Kappa. In 1919 he became an associate member of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

News of Eric Jackson's tragic death in France on June 11, 1930, was a stunning blow to his old friends who heard it at Commencement. According to The Associated Press, Eric was killed near Vizille, France, by a huge rock that tumbled down from a mountain side, striking the bus on which he was riding. At the time of his death he was completing a year of study at the University of Grenoble, with the geography of the Alps as his specialty. He went to Grenoble in September, 1929, as a Fellow of the Institute of International Education. When he won the Fellowship he was Associate Professor of Geography and Geology at Hillsdale College in Michigan. He received his A. M. at Clark University in 1923 and his Ph. D. in geography at the University of Chicago in 1929. Before he sailed for France he wrote to one of his friends on the Hill, saying:

"Mrs. Jackson and I are delighted at the prospect of a year in France, and especially in the Alps at Grenoble. I assure you that I shall make the best use of my opportunities for research there in 'mountain geography,' also I hope to be able to give an outlet to my mountain-climbing propensities." Eric belonged to the Association of Clark Geographers, the American Geographic Society, the Harvard Travellers' Club, the Appalachian Mountain Club and Delta Phi. To his widow and his mother, Ducky Drake, writing in the summer, said that "the good old C. G. Mills Oil Co., of which I was director and secretary, sold out last month to the Pure Oil Co." So Ducky has shifted his allegiance to the Richfield Oil Corporation and is working to develop the Syracuse field for that concern. His new business address is 316 Heffernan Bldg., Syracuse.

Wes Hayward, formerly associate manager of the Providence office of the National Life Insurance Company of Vermont, is now affiliated with the Rhode Island branch of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada at 1405 Industrial Trust Bldg., Providence.

Dr. Robert A. Goodell has changed his address to the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co., 79 Elm Street, Hartford, Conn.

Hal Neubauer is studying at the Law School, University of Pennsylvania, as the result of winning a competitive scholarship in the school. There are five of these scholarships, and they provide for free tuition for three years if the scholastic work of the holder is satisfactory. In addition to his studies, Hal is coaching football at Lawrenceville School. We saw him a couple of times during the summer and had pleasant talks with him. We congratulate him on his success and, incidentally, on his energy.

Malcolm Smith is in the office of J. Brooks Nichols, investments, 52 William Street, New York.

John R. Cobb received his M. D. at Yale last June, and Art Hardy won a similar degree at Harvard. Art will be at the Providence City Hospital until next April, when he will go to the Rhode Island Hospital.

Melvin King is a chemist with the American Powder Company, Maynard, Mass., and he says that "it surely seems good to be back in this section again. In the fall I hope to get to some of the football games."

It is the Rev. Franklin D. Elmer, Jr., now, and Frank, having completed three years of graduate study at the University of Chicago Divinity School, has taken up his work as pastor of the First Baptist Church, DeKalb, Ill., where his address is 223 Prospect Street.

Lawton P. G. Peckham, who was a Fellow in modern languages at Princeton last year, will continue his studies at Princeton this year as a Porter Ogden Jacobus Fellow.

Bill Miller, with Central America and banana growing behind him, has become a sales correspondent with Bird & Sons, roofing materials, East Walpole, Mass.

Tony Magee is with the Woodward & Tiernan Co., printers, 1440 Broadway, New York. We read a good letter from Tony during the summer in which he recommended a likely prospect for the Brown class of 1934.

Don Ball's chief ambition, so the radio notes tell us, "is to cross the Atlantic in a high powered speed boat." We know one young man who will not volunteer as a member of the crew if Don ever makes the attempt.

Charlie Kenney was an Alumni Office visitor one day in August, and we regret that we were not on hand to welcome him. Charlie is hard at it as manager of the western branch of the Kenney Mfg. Company, makers of extension curtain rods. His office is at 814 So. Theresa Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

Isador Korn, who received his LL. B. at Harvard last June, is a law clerk with the firm of Harlow & Boudreau, 1904-05 Industrial Trust Bldg., Providence.

A fine letter from Harry Remington early in August made us forget the heat. Harry said that he hoped to be on the Hill this fall and wanted to know if we were going to have a football team on which he might risk a few of his hard-earned dollars. He also told us that Bob Duncan has been made assistant manager of the Philadelphia office of the Simplex Wire and Cable Co. of Boston.

James W. Santry, Jr., former member of the class, received the degree of Master of Laws at Boston University in June. Santry won his LL. B. in 1928. He is associated with his father in practice in Lynn, Mass.

Fred Knipe is an investment counsellor with William H. Coburn & Co., 68 Devonshire Street, Boston.

Frank Singiser was going strong as a radio announcer through the summer and several of his old cronies and acquaintances told us how much they enjoyed listening to him on the air.

Harvey Ollsen, who spent the summer in the Bond Department, Industrial Trust Company, Providence, has gone into teaching this fall and is at the Canaan, Conn., High School, where his subjects include mathematics and general science. He will also coach basketball and baseball.

Duncan Fraser expects to spend the next two years in residence at St. Edmund Hall, Oxford, England, finishing his course in theology.

Tom Morris received the degree of A. M. in chemistry at Western Reserve University Graduate School in June.

Nelson Conlong and Paul Hodge spent the summer working at the New National Hotel, Block Island, and Paul, we hear, made a hit on the beach during his off hours.

When Win Schuster and Mrs. Schuster, newly married, came home to East Douglas, Mass., on Aug. 1, they were serenaded by the East Douglas Brass Band of 80 pieces, the East Douglas Boy Scouts Fife and Drum Corps and all of the inhabitants of the town who were able to walk. There were speeches, red fire, and steam sirens and whatnot, and, according to the newspaper accounts, Win and Mrs. Schuster must have been very happy when it was all over.

Giants out of the earth

An Advertisement of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company

No AGE but ours has seen so swift and complete an application of natural forces to the doing of daily tasks. Man's leaping knowledge . . . embodied in industrial plants and laboratories, airplanes and electric locomotives . . . has won new power and freedom. Machines are the symbols of a new relationship with nature. They are the servants of this civilization . . . helping men to extend the limits of their opportunities, to change the character of their life.

Americans have been pre-eminent in this change, for in whatever they do they seek to utilize nature to the utmost. They have taken the power out of the earth and from the running streams. They have made it turn the wheels of their industry and move their products by rail and road. They have made color and variety out of chemistry. They have spun metal in slim wires to carry their voices anywhere with the speed of light . . . and make neighbors of the scattered millions of America.

Joining homes and work places, towns and distant cities, the Bell Telephone System has furnished a new communication for this new age. Forwarding the growth of the nation, giving better and more complete service in advance of the demand, its function has become the indispensable one of furnishing the means of social and business contacts in crowded cities and scattered villages over the length and breadth of a continent.

The Bell System is constantly improving the scope, speed and accuracy of its service.

Its work of contributing to the welfare and prosperity of American life goes on with increasing purpose and pace.

Short Hills, N. J., and flew with her to Maryland, where they were married. He is survived by his widow, his father, two brothers and a sister. His fraternity was Sigma Chi.

Otto Kerner, we hear, is studying law at Cambridge University, Cambridge, England.

Jack Seegal wrote during the summer that he was "with the R. C. A. Victor Co., at present, designing socket power units for radios and also affiliated apparatus."

Charlie Kean went to work on the city staff of the Providence Evening Bulletin as soon as he received his diploma in June.

Clarence A. (Toots) Munroe died in North Attleboro, Mass., on July 2, 1930, after a lingering illness. He was born in North Attleboro, Aug. 27, 1907, the son of James Alexander and Martha A. (Butters) Munroe. He prepared at Williston Academy and came to Brown with a reputation as a sterling football player. He lived up to that reputation, although injuries interfered seriously with his work on the gridiron. In the fall of 1928 after having won the position at quarter, he shone with special brilliance in the game against Yale until he was carried off the field following a collision with a Yale player. He never played football again. He is survived by his parents and his brother, Jim, end on the Brown eleven for three years. His fraternity was Phi Delta Theta.

L. E. (Curly) Rogers is with the Solvay Sales Corporation and at present is working out from the Indianapolis office.
